Researching professional and amateur recordings

The screenshot shows the top of the freesound website. The logo 'freesound' is in the top left, with 'free' in black and 'sound' in red. Below the logo are navigation buttons for 'Sounds', 'Forums', 'People', and 'Help'. A section titled 'Random sound of the day' features a video player for a sound sample. The video player shows a green progress bar and a play button. To the right of the video player, the text reads: 'Yamaha CS-30L - Grizzle ...' followed by five stars, the user 'modularsamples', the date 'July 9th, 2015', '16 downloads', and '0 comments'. Below this, there are social media icons and a description: 'Single note sampled from an analog synthesizer by Modular Samples. Modular Samples provides samples of vintage and modern synthesizers for Apple ...'. At the bottom of the description, there are links for 'C4 midi-note-60 Yamaha-CS-30L synthesizer', 'single-note', and 'multisample'.

Digital version

- Mobile devices take the role of hand made or body percussion sounds
- The team functions similarly through brainstorming, design, rehearsal, presentation as in a small digital device orchestra
- Brainstorming however is defined by research in sound libraries o the web.
- Reproduction (playback) is also affected by the kind of devices
